

Exhibit 26

58 Q. If she hasn't frozen.

MS. ELOVECKY: I think she's frozen.

1 While she's frozen, do you mind if we take -
 2 well, I know you just asked a question, but do
 3 you mind if she needs to reconnect if I take a
 4 bio break?

5 MR. EPSTEIN: I would like her to --
 6 yeah, all right. Why don't we take a bio break.
 7 That's fine. Five minutes or ten minutes, what
 8 do you need?

9 MS. ELOVECKY: I only need five. If you
 10 want to take ten, since we are breaking anyway?

MR. EPSTEIN: Okay.

MS. ELOVECKY: 12:20.

(Short Recess Taken.)

14 THE REPORTER: "QUESTION: Did you have
 15 a
 16 differentiation in your mind between The New York
 17 Times, the newspaper, and The New York Times
 18 Magazine, which comes out on Saturday or Sunday,
 19 depending upon where you live?"

MS. ELOVECKY: Objection for the record.

21 Q. Let me -- when you contacted Bob Kolker,
 22 in your mind, was there a difference between The
 23 New York Times and The New York Times Magazine?

A. I don't agree with the premises of that
 1 question. I don't see this as a perpetuation.

2 The litigation itself is perpetual.

3 Q. It is perpetual until it ends, that's
 4 correct. But don't you think the litigation
 5 would resolve whatever dispute you had with
 6 Ms. Larson?

MS. ELOVECKY: Objection.

8 A. Actually there are aspects of my
 9 dispute with Ms. Larson, with Sonya, that are 10 outside of the jurisdiction of the court. Q. So
 11 what are they?

MS. ELOVECKY: Objection.

You can answer.

14 A. There are many ethical aspects to this
 15 dispute with Sonya Larson.

Q. Aren't they before the court right now?

17 A. No. Not as I understand it. They
 18 are context. They are story supporting the
 19 claims back and forth, but as far as I know,
 20 they are not the matter being litigated in the
 21 jurisdiction of the federal court.

23 Q. Well, you made plagiarism claims against
 24 Ms. Larson, you made copyright infringements
